(Court called into session)

THE CLERK: Today is Wednesday November 9, 2005. The case of Citizens for Consumer Justice, et al v. Abbott Laboratories, et al, Civil action 01-12257 will now be heard before this court. Will counsel, please, identify themselves for the record.

MR. MATT: Good morning, Your Honor, Sean Matt representing plaintiffs in this action.

THE COURT: Thank you.

MR. MACORETTA: Good afternoon, Your Honor, John Macoretta here for the plaintiffs.

THE COURT: Thank you very much.

MR. NALVEN: David Nalven for the plaintiffs, Your Honor.

MR. MONTGOMERY: John Montgomery, Your Honor, I represent Schering-Plough, and I'll also speak for the Track One defendants.

MR. STEMPEL: Scott Stempel, Your Honor, I represent Pharmacia and Pfizer and I'll be speaking for the Track Two defendants.

MR. SCHAU: Andrew Schau, I represent Johnson & Johnson defendants, and I will be addressing some of Johnson and Johnson's motions. My colleague Adeel Mangi will be addressing the other motion.

1 THE COURT: Thank you. All right, first of all 2 counsel I have an apology to make and that is in reviewing the 3 docket the last few days, the clerk, who is no longer working 4 for the court, made the mistake when she noticed this hearing.
5 She noticed it for docket entries 1741 and 1694, the motion to 6 modify the discovery schedule and to extend the time for expert 7 witness disclosure. These are clearly motions that should be 8 handled by Judge Saris, and they will not be heard today and I 9 do apologize for people who may have made the trip but 10 unfortunately it was a mistake on her part.

11 Now as to the motion to quash filed on behalf of 12 Stanley Hopkins, which is docket entry number 1752, I will take 13 that on the papers. There is opposition to that motion by 14 AstraZeneca, which is docket entry number 1768, and there is an 15 expedited motion to have that heard. And I will take care of 16 that and give you a margin ruling within a day or so.

17 So I will start today with Johnson & Johnson's motion 18 which is docket entry number 1725. All right, so I'll hear 19 you.

20 MR. SCHAU: Thank you, Your Honor.

21 THE COURT: You're welcome.

22 MR. SCHAU: As I said before my name is Andrew Schau, 23 and I represent Johnson & Johnson defendants in this matter, 24 and I'm here to argue for you our motion to compel responses to 25 requests for admission and interrogatories relating to two

1 Johnson and Johnson drugs, one by the name of Procrit, the 2 other by the name of Remicade. Just by way of brief
3 background, this case began with the plaintiffs naming over 30
4 Johnson & Johnson drugs that allegedly are being part of a 5 fraudulent conspiracy that you're familiar with. We're down to 6 these two drugs at this point, and we have moved to compel 7 these two drugs only.

8 We served timely requests for discovery on August 1st.
9 We did that in anticipation of the fact that they needed 30
10 days to respond and then after 30 days needed to come before 11 the close of discovery on September 1. Our goal in serving 12 these requests to admit interrogatories was to narrow the 13 issues in the case and set up our anticipated motion for 14 summary judgment. We don't think that we need to actually have 15 to litigate issues that are not substantially in dispute, and 16 we tried to focus our requests to admit interrogatories on 17 issues that we believe are not substantially in dispute.
18 Moreover, we focused our interrogatories and requests on issues 19 that lie at the very core of plaintiffs' claim.

20 If I could be just indulged a couple of examples. We 21 ask plaintiffs to admit, for example, that the AWP for Procrit 22 has always been 20% more than what's called the wholesale
23 acquisition cost of Procrit. I don't think there's any dispute 24 about that on the record. There's extensive testimony on that.
25 Plaintiffs know it to be true. We asked them to admit that

1 Remicade's AWP has always been 130% higher than its wholesale 2 acquisition cost. We asked them to admit that Centocor, the 3 company that sells Remicade, has never paid rebates of any kind 4 to physicians. We asked them to admit that Centocor has never 5 paid rebates to pharmacy benefit managers. We asked them to 6 admit or to tell us what they say the net acquisition cost was 7 for Remicade and what the net reimbursement costs was for 8 Remicade, numbers that lie at the heart of their theory of the 9 case.

10 We believe these requests are straightforward and 11 that after three exhaustive years of discovery plaintiffs are 12 in a position to say, yes, I admit that, no, I don't admit it 13 or I can't admit it for the following reasons. I think we're 14 entitled to know that under oath in every case. The reason 15 we've posed the ones we did is we believe that truthful and 16 candid responses to these interrogatories and document requests 17 will very much advance our case for summary judgment. It's the 18 reason we've served them. We anticipate making that motion.

19 We think that plaintiffs when they received these 20 requests realized the implications and, therefore, decided to 21 duck them. For example, except for interrogatories asking them 22 to admit when the two drugs were first sold in the United 23 States they have objected to every single request to admit and 24 every single request for an interrogatory. For example, in 25 response to our request that they admit what the relationship

1 was between the AWP and the WAC for these two drugs, they say 2 plaintiffs object to this contention interrogatory which would 3 require sorting of various publishers' databases and WAC
4 information. If defendant supplies data that backs up this RFA
5 plaintiffs will respond. This is not time for discovery. We 6 have supplied data until we're blue in the face. We've given 7 them everything they've asked for. We deserve a response. For 8 example, our request to admit number three said, tell us, admit 9 that we didn't pay rebates to physicians. They object as 10 follows, objection, the term rebates is vague, ambiguous and 11 undefined.

12 For us to be three years into this litigation and for 13 plaintiffs to tell us that they cannot respond to a request
14 that uses the word rebates is beyond comprehension. Let me
15 just give you an example of what plaintiffs have told Judge
16 Saris in a different context. Recently Mr. Berman, the lead 17 plaintiffs' counsel, opposed our motion for an extension - I 18 mean, our motion for sanctions based on their failure to comply 19 with the expert report deadline. In the course of responding 20 to that he said that their experts are currently reviewing all 21 the rebate transactions including one, amount; two, date of 22 rebate; three, information sufficient to identify the type of 23 rebate; four, information sufficient to identify the customer 24 and the class and trade designation. They are intently focused 25 on our rebates. They know whether or not we paid rebates to 1 physicians and we're entitled to their answer under oath.

2 I submit, Your Honor, that the time for playing games
3 on discovery requests has ended. They're refusing to give us 4 responses to simple and straightforward and critical requests 5 and our motion should be granted.

6 Thank you.

7 THE COURT: Okay, I'll hear you briefly, but my 8 fashion in handling these matters is to go through them one by 9 one. So if you want to give me first, a brief response, I'll 10 hear you and then we'll tackle them.

11 MR. MACORETTA: Very well, Your Honor, John Macoretta
12 here for the plaintiffs. I'll give a brief response and it 13 might be better if I simply respond to them one by one.
14 There's only about 10 of them. That might be the best.

15 The overview, Your Honor's, that a lot of what J&J is 16 asking for here is not at all simple and will require expert 17 analysis and opinion at the end of the day. And we simply 18 cannot - to ask us for answers to this question would require 19 us to get an expert, to have an opinion on issues which the 20 defendants have argued up to date especially in their class 21 cert papers are too complicated to be determined. Some of the 22 other things - well, the purpose of interrogatories and 23 admissions is to take out issue what should be simple facts 24 that are not in dispute.

25 THE COURT: Counsel, I know the purpose.

1 MR. MACORETTA: Okay, that's fine. Let me go
2 through them in order, Your Honor. Let me start - they vary, 3 there are two sets, one for Remicade, one for Procrit. They 4 vary slightly. I will use the Remicade set, which is Exhibit 4
5 to Mr. Schau's declaration. Request number 1, admit that 6 Centocor began selling Remicade in 1998. We admitted that.
7 Interrogatory number 1 we don't have to answer because we did.

8 THE COURT: Let's only go through the ones that--

9 MR. MACORETTA: That's fine.

10 THE COURT: --are at issue.

11 MR. MACORETTA: That's going to be, request number 2, 12 admit that from '98 to the present the published AWP for 13 Remicade has been 130% of the published WAC for Remicade. Our 14 answer to that is that it's J & J who published that. They're 15 the people who have that information. They published the WAC 16 and the AWP. They're asking us to essentially admit what their 17 own data says. That's the basis for our objection there.

18 THE COURT: Do you want to be heard on that? This is 19 the way I'll go, back and forth.

20 MR. SCHAU: Sure. I think this is not a discovery 21 request in the sense of, you know, this is at the end of the 22 day. We have given them all this data. They've had it for 23 three years. It's time for them to either admit it, deny it or 24 tell us why they can't.

25 THE COURT: What's wrong with that?

1 MR. MACORETTA: They've given us a mountain of data 2 and to admit this would require us then to sort through their 3 own data and to admit a conclusion which is well within their 4 knowledge.

5 THE COURT: Well, admit it or deny it.

6 MR. MACORETTA: All right. Request number three,
7 admit that from 1998 to the present Centocor has not paid
8 rebates on Remicade to physicians who purchase or dispense
9 Remicade. Well, we did argue the term rebates is vague here
10 and that has been the subject of discussion. There's no 11 question that J&J has giving us something they call the rebate 12 database. You'll see in their definitions at the beginning of 13 their instructions a lot of terms are defined, rebates is not 14 one of them.

15 THE COURT: Well, can you agree on a definition of 16 rebates?

17 MR. MACORETTA: I suppose we could try to do that, 18 Your Honor. We have not yet done that.

19 THE COURT: It doesn't seem so difficult that you
20 couldn't do it right here and now. Do you have a suggestion?

21 MR. MACORETTA: I'm thinking through my head as to 22 whether or not there's been some definition of rebate that's 23 been - that anybody's been accepted in any other context in 24 this case. I think this was a fight among the experts as well 25 as to what's a rebate as opposed to a charge back or a discount

1 as well. Remicade produced a database that was called 2 rebates. If this is limited to admitting that a review of that 3 database says that no rebates - that database doesn't indicate 4 that any rebates went to physicians, we could do that if 5 that's--

6 MR. SCHAU: If they have any evidence that we've ever 7 given a rebate to a physician they can deny this request to 8 admit and they can tell me what that evidence is. A rebate is 9 real simple, Judge. It's what you give to a physician after he 10 or she has purchased the drug. It offsets some of the cost of 11 the drug in the first instance. That may not be an economist 12 definition, but it's a very common sense simple concept to 13 understand. They know what a rebate is.

14 THE COURT: Respond.

15 MR. MACORETTA: If the Court orders us to use that 16 definition then we will use that definition and comply with it.
17 And now there's a related issue, Judge, in that the data from 18 J&J is incomplete. Going forward as you know Judge Saris' 19 order in August she seemed to indicate a class period up to the 20 present. We only have data from J&J up to 2003. Going 21 backward for Procrit the class period goes to 1991. We only 22 have data to 1994. That's because J&J says they don't have the 23 data. They cannot produce it in any form before that. So that 24 means--

25 THE COURT: Well you'll answer it to the extent that

1 you have the data.

2 MR. MACORETTA: Are we using - I don't know if Your 3 Honor ordered us to use the definition Mr. Schau gave or are we 4 just agree to that or I'm not--

5 THE COURT: Can you agree to it?

6 MR. MACORETTA: I believe that we can, yes--

7 THE COURT: All right.

8 MR. MACORETTA: --Your Honor. The request to admit 9 number four is the same thing, admissions to pharmacy benefit 10 managers. That should be resolved by what you just said. We - 11 with the request to admit number five is admitting about 12 Remicade, rebates that may have been paid to help maintenance 13 organizations and preferred provider organizations. Subject to 14 that definition then I believe we can answer that as well.

15 Request to admit number six. This is where things 16 change and it becomes more complicated. Admit that from '98 to 17 the present, that's when Remicade came on the market, the 18 rebates that Centocor has paid on Remicade have reduced the net 19 reimbursement cost of Remicade for those payers that have 20 received rebates. Well, net reimbursement costs is defined - 21 that's not a term the plaintiffs ever use by the way, is 22 defined by them to mean that the cost incurred by a payer such 23 as a patient, insurer or the government for a drug or biologic 24 product net of any rebates or other reimbursement or other 25 rebates or other price adjustments? That is not a term the

1 plaintiffs ever use. We have not attempted to figure it out 2 to date.

3 THE COURT: It's pretty straightforward.

4 MR. MACORETTA: Well, but, Your Honor, to do that we 5 would then need data from the entire class. The net
6 reimbursement cost incurred by a payer such as an insurer or a 7 patient meaning what did that patient or payer ultimately pay?
8 We don't have that data from the entire class. I mean, that's 9 - you're going to hear other motions today about discovery from 10 third party Blue's. That's just simply that it's not available 11 to us.

12 THE COURT: Well to the extent that you have the 13 data, what's your--

14 MR. SCHAU: May I just say on this issue I don't 15 think they need to crunch a single number to answer this 16 question. All we're trying to get at here is the fact that the 17 people who are paying for our drugs are the ones getting the 18 rebates so that it reduces their costs of having to reimburse 19 for our drugs. We're not asking them to run any mathematical 20 number crunching calculations. All they have to do is 21 understand that, you know, X minus Y is a lower number than X 22 plus Y.

23 MR. MACORETTA: If that's the limitation then we can 24 probably do that but when we read this interrogatory it seemed 25 to indicate that we had to come up with some nationwide net

1 reimbursement cost.

2 THE COURT: Let's take it with -- you've heard it, 3 take it at that.

4 MR. MACORETTA: That's fine.

5 THE COURT: Next.

6 MR. MACORETTA: Admit that from 1998 to the present 7 the rebates that Centocor has paid on Remicade have reduced the 8 spread. Spread as defined by J&J is different than the way
9 plaintiffs have always defined the spread. Spread here means 10 the difference between the net acquisition cost, which is 11 another term created by J&J and the net reimbursement cost.
12 Net acquisition cost is apparently what doctors ultimately pay 13 to acquire the drug. We don't know what that is. It's 14 completely irrelevant to our claims. Every J&J witness we have 15 asked, do you know what doctors pay to acquire your drug, the 16 answer is no. We know what we sell it to the wholesalers for.
17 We have no idea what the wholesalers mark-up is. To answer
18 this we would need to know the information that J&J 19 disclaims any knowledge of.

20 THE COURT: What's your response?

21 MR. SCHAU: I think again, this does not require them 22 to crunch any numbers, but I will tell you that if they will 23 say under oath that they have no idea what physicians pay for 24 Remicade and that that lack of information has no implications
25 for their case, I think that enhances my prospects for summary

1 judgment--

2 MR. MACORETTA: Well--

3 MR. SCHAU: --very significantly.

4 THE COURT: Is that a--

5 MR. MACORETTA: I don't know if we can make that 6 representation. I mean, we still have expert reports. I can 7 tell you right now that that's not part of our theory, but I 8 don't think we can make a representation under oath that that 9 has no relevance to anything. You know, and our answer under 10 oath is we've conducted discovery on this from their witnesses 11 all of whom said they don't know. So as we read this they're 12 asking us to come up with a formula using data that they admit 13 they don't have. To do this we would have to depose 14 wholesalers who have resisted that and the time for that 15 discovery is over as well.

16 THE COURT: Well, if you don't have the information
17 I'm not going to order further discovery on it. Okay?

18 MR. MACORETTA: Request to admit number eight is 19 going to go to the same issue because that says admit that from 20 '98 to the present the spread on Remicade has not exceeded the 21 difference between its public WAC and its published AWP. Well, 22 the information that - we still have the information to figure 23 out spread as they used in that, which is same as the last 24 question.

25 MR. SCHAU: Your Honor, there's no dispute that they

1 have all of the information on Remicade from the beginning of 2 time until the end of 2003. If they want to say we can't admit 3 in 2004 because we never got that information in discovery and 4 never moved to compel it, I accept that.

5 THE COURT: Okay.

6 MR. SCHAU: But to say that they don't have the 7 information and, therefore, they can't make these calculations
8 is just simply untrue. And I think the predicate of your last 9 ruling was that you accepted that representation, and I just 10 wanted to make it clear that--

11 THE COURT: That's clear.

12 MR. SCHAU: --we dispute that.

13 MR. MACORETTA: We don't dispute that we have 14 information from J&J. Our position is the information this 15 seeks is not information from J&J. It's information from 16 someone else that we don't have.

17 THE COURT: Well, set that out in your response then.

18 MR. MACORETTA: All right. The - interrogatory, now 19 we have some interrogatories that say from '98 to the present
20 state each published WAC and each published AWP for Remicade, 21 Remicade and the effective date of change in each of Remicade's
22 WAC and AWP. Well, again, Your Honor, this is - there the ones 23 who set the AWP and the WAC, so this is an interrogatory that 24 says you tell us when we changed all of our prices. At best 25 this would be set out, this would be better set out in the form

1 of an admission that says this is when we changed the prices 2 admit or deny as opposed to making us go through a bunch of 3 data to come up with this.

4 MR. SCHAU: They have all this information, Your 5 Honor, and it's a request to admit. It's not a request to tell 6 us something we don't know. I don't want to have to fight 7 about something they know, and I think they should either have 8 to admit it, deny it or say why they can't, and they can't come 9 and say we don't know what the date of the AWP's were and we 10 don't know what the WAC's were because the entire premise of 11 this case is that those numbers were published and that they're 12 fraudulent. For them to tell you now they can't admit or deny 13 what they are when they are willing to tell the Court that they 14 know them to be fraudulent strikes me as worse than ironic--

15 THE COURT: Well they have to--

16 MR. SCHAU: --but disingenuous.

17 THE COURT: --they have to admit or deny.

18 MR. MACORETTA: But this is an interrogatory, Your 19 Honor. That - Mr. Schau's incorrect, what I just read is an 20 interrogatory not an admission. I just suggested that if it 21 was in the--

22 THE COURT: So did you jump from one--

23 MR. MACORETTA: Pardon?

24 THE COURT: Where were - what was--

25 MR. MACORETTA: I just read - we're done with the 1 admissions. I just read interrogatory number nine.

2 THE COURT: All right.

3 MR. MACORETTA: It said from '98 state each of them.

4 THE COURT: All right.

5 MR. MACORETTA: And my point there was if that was an 6 admission we could do it, but to say go take the 100 plus 7 thousand pages of data and generate a price list of every time 8 we changed our prices is not an appropriate use of the 9 interrogatories and that's why we objected to it. This is 10 there information. They know it a lot better than we do. This 11 - ask us to go sort through their data and find this 12 information now's an inappropriate use of interrogatories.

13 MR. SCHAU: It's not our data. We're asking for them 14 to admit what the published data of UP was and to admit what 15 the published WAC was.

16 THE COURT: This is not a request for admission.
17 This is--

18 MR. SCHAU: I'm sorry, you're right. I'm incorrect.
19 We're asking them to tell us what those two numbers were. Yes, 20 they have to look it up. They have to look it up in First Data 21 Bank's books. They have to answer those questions. But 22 remember they know enough about those numbers to tell you that 23 they're fraudulent. I just want to know what they say they 24 are.

25 MR. MACORETTA: Your Honor, this is like me handing

1 you the paperwork from a car I just bought and then serving an 2 interrogatory that says tell me how much I paid for the car.
3 It's my knowledge. It's within my knowledge, what's the 4 purpose of making you answer an interrogatory?

5 THE COURT: Answer.

6 MR. MACORETTA: Interrogatory number 10; state the 7 ASP for Remicade for each of the time intervals between the 8 changes in Remicade's WAC and AWP identified in response to 9 interrogatory number nine. Now this calls for a definite, a 10 calculation of ASP, your average selling price. A few issues 11 here. First of all, we asked the defendants for this 12 information in 2004. We filed a motion and you refused to, you 13 denied it. You said they didn't have to produce that 14 information to us. Secondly, to the extent our expert, 15 Professor Hartman or someone else, is in their expert report 16 going to make a calculation of ASP, then we agree that they're 17 entitled to that calculation and whatever's behind it as part 18 of the expert report. And our answer to that is what I just 19 said to you. This is an appropriate part of an expert report.
20 It's not appropriate outside that context. Expert's report 21 will be filed. You said there's an ASP in it, we'll provide 22 all the information.

23 MR. SCHAU: Your Honor, the theory of the case 24 against J&J is that our ASP's are too low relative to our 25 AWP's. I want to know what our ASP's were. It is true that

1 you denied their motion to have us tell you what our ASP's 2 were, and I don't know if you remember that argument but it had 3 to do with the fact that we don't calculate that number. This 4 is a number that plaintiffs say matters. It is a number that 5 plaintiffs say is crucial to their case. I'm delighted to 6 learn that Dr. Hartman will tell us what he thinks that number 7 is. And I would also point out to you that in this 8 interrogatory response they tell us that Dr. Hartman was going 9 to give us the answer to that question on October 1st. Had he 10 done so when his expert report was due this would be moot.
11 It's not moot. I have experts trying to do damage reports as 12 we speak not knowing what the plaintiffs' claims are. I was 13 entitled to know this at the end of the discovery period.

14 MR. MACORETTA: Your Honor, the timing of Dr.
15 Hartman's expert report was the subject of one of the two 16 motions that came off the docket today. At the time we filed 17 this, we thought we could comply with that deadline, and I 18 won't go into the details of why we need more time subject this 19 place to say there's some good arguments for that. In any 20 event to require us to answer this interrogatory now we'd have 21 to go to Dr. Hartman, make him do exactly what he's doing in 22 his expert report.

23 THE COURT: Well that would just speed things up, 24 wouldn't it?

25 MR. MACORETTA: Well, it'd speed things up for two

1 drugs at the expense of everything else. I mean, what is the 2 benefit to J&J of getting this in advance of his expert report?
3 As you can imagine he's doing a lot of work.

4 THE COURT: They've asked for it, they can have it.
5 Ordered to respond.

6 MR. MACORETTA: Thank you, Your Honor. That's - let 7 me see, interrogatory number 11, one more, state the average 8 net reimbursement cost and the average net acquisition cost for 9 Remicade for each of the time intervals between the changes in 10 WAC and AWP. I think Your Honor ordered us to calculate one of 11 them and agree that we didn't have to calculate the other. So 12 to the extent we provide some of that information would be the 13 same calculation here.

14 THE COURT: All right. Can live with that?

15 MR. SCHAU: I can live with the answer, I don't know 16 under oath.

17 THE COURT: Certainly.

18 MR. MACORETTA: Great.

19 THE COURT: All right.

20 MR. MACORETTA: That's--

21 MR. SCHAU: Your Honor, there were a handful of 22 Procrit interrogatories and requests to admit that were 23 slightly different. I don't think it's worth the Court's time 24 to go through those separately. I think we've gotten enough of 25 your direction--

1 THE COURT: To the extent that they follow along--

2 MR. SCHAU: Yeah.

3 MR. MACORETTA: Yeah, I understand that.

4 MR. SCHAU: And to the extent that we don't--

5 MR. MACORETTA: I don't think--

6 MR. SCHAU: --I think we can work that out, and if we 7 can't, unfortunately, we'll come back.

8 THE COURT: All right.

9 MR. MACORETTA: I don't think there's anything that's 10 substantively different. Thank you.

11 THE COURT: All right, thank you. All right, moving 12 on now to docket entry number 1734, which is the non-parties
13 and absent class members, Blue Cross Blue Shield of Vermont, et 14 cetera.

15 MR. POULIN: That's me, Your Honor.

16 THE COURT: Good afternoon.

17 MR. POULIN: Thomas Poulin from Robins, Kaplan, 18 Miller and Ciresi in Washington for the movants. Your Honor, 19 the reason why we filed our motion, filing it even after the 20 close of the discovery period is that the defendants are at a 21 point here where they are far exceeding the limits that Judge
22 Saris placed on the discovery of non-parties which our clients 23 are as well as absent class members. They're far exceeding the 24 bounds under existing case law and the guidelines in the manual 25 for complex litigation.

1 Your Honor, let me just as way of background take 2 the Court back to what Judge Saris actually said at the motion
3 hearing on Monday March 8, 2004 when the discussion arose about 4 discovery, the defendants taking discovery of absent class 5 members and non-parties. This was all in the context of 6 determining whether the class representatives in this case were 7 typical of all of the other members of the class. And that was 8 Judge Saris' concern and that was the discussion at that time.
9 Judge Saris stated in this is on page - I'm sorry, this is on 10 page 20 - actually, Your Honor, let me also reference this is 11 Exhibit 11 to the response by defendants - Judge Saris on page 12 48 of the transcript at that hearing, she noted that "in this 13 case it may be critical to understanding not just preemption 14 issues but also what's typical. And so I do think you need to 15 be responsive to producing plans at the very least for a few.
16 I don't even know if there are different kinds of ERISA Plans 17 even among the plaintiffs.

18 The Court then states in response to Mr. Berman, I
19 assume you're not going to take a deposition of every ERISA 20 Plan in America - and I'm sorry, this is in response to 21 Mr. Wise. Mr. Wise who's counsel for AstraZeneca in response 22 to the Court's question about assuming you're not going to take 23 a depo of every ERISA Plan in America he says, "no, I can 24 answer that question, no." And so you see, Your Honor, in the 25 colloquy between counsel and the Court here, it's clear that

1 what Judge Saris was allowing and acknowledging that in a 2 class action, class wide discovery of every class member is not 3 allowed and so Judge Saris correctly allowed defendants to take 4 discovery of absent class members but it was to be limited.
5 And Mr. Wise even goes on to say on page 49 of the transcript, 6 "What we want to do is just develop enough information so we 7 can present a sample." And that's what he's talking about, a 8 sample. And, Your Honor, I submit to you that that is proper 9 in a class action that a sample of absent class members 10 information, data, documents, depositions is certainly allowed.

11 What we have here, Your Honor, is a case in which the 12 defendants are overreaching. They now want extensive data, 13 documents and depositions of my six non-party class members, 14 and at this point in time I don't think, Your Honor, defendants
15 haven't had any burden at all to present the Court with a 16 compelling reason why they need this discovery. But what they 17 will say is, well, we want to understand the state of mind of 18 every health plan or every insurer in America. Well, Your 19 Honor, that subverts the whole reason behind Rule 23 in a 20 limitation placed upon discovery.

21 THE COURT: But you acknowledge that they're entitled 22 to a sample?

23 MR. POULIN: I acknowledge that they're entitled to a 24 sample and as we pointed out in our brief, Your Honor, they 25 have taken their sample and then some. They have taken

1 discovery. They have received documents, data--

2 THE COURT: Ms. Fried, don't go out of the courtroom.

3 MS. FRIED: All right.

4 THE COURT: I'm just waiting for the government and 5 I'll take a brief break. I have a criminal matter that I have 6 to deal with and as soon as the government counsel arrives, 7 I'll see you first at the sidebar.

8 MS. FRIED: Okay.

9 THE COURT: Excuse me.

10 MR. POULIN: That's fine, Your Honor. Well, the 11 point I was trying to make is and as we pointed out in our 12 brief they've already taken depositions and received documents 13 and data from at least half of the health plans in this country 14 represented by the number of covered lives, including a number 15 of Blue Cross and Blue Shield plans.

16 THE COURT: How many?

17 MR. POULIN: So they've taken--

18 THE COURT: How many Blue Cross?

19 MR. POULIN: Your Honor, by my count I count some 10
20 to 12.

21 MS. FRIED: I think the government might be standing 22 outside in the hall.

23 THE COURT: Okay.

24 MS. FRIED: So--

25 THE COURT: Bring them in.

1 MS. FRIED: If I could hold a minute.

2 MR. POULIN: If I may continue, Your Honor, on page 3 four of our brief, we list the number of absent class members 4 that have been subpoenaed and that have produced documents and 5 this is an extensive list. This represents in terms of covered 6 lives, some 150 million covered lives.

7 Now in America there are approximately 200 people 8 covered by private - 200 million people covered by private 9 insurance. This represents well over half of the country. It 10 would seem to me that we're at a point in time here in this 11 litigation in 2005, after class certification briefing has been 12 complete, after the decision has been rendered, after the close 13 of the discovery period where enough is enough and that's why 14 we're here, Your Honor.

15 THE COURT: All right, I'll take a brief recess right 16 now. If the marshal maybe could bring in counsel. I'm going 17 to see if I can quickly deal with this criminal matter.

18 MR. SCHAU: Do you want us to vacate this table, Your 19 Honor?

20 THE COURT: You can vacate the table but you can 21 leave your papers.

22 (Pause)

23 THE COURT: I have the issue of the prisoners van 24 that I have to deal with by 4:00 so.

25 (Recess)

1 THE COURT: All right, resuming. And your criminal 2 lawyers are not on the hourly rate.

3 UNIDENTIFIED: But nobody's going to jail here.

4 THE COURT: You hope.

5 (Recess)

6 THE COURT: All right, resuming on the record. Why
7 shouldn't I grant this motion?

8 MR. MANGI: Thank you, Your Honor, Adeel Mangi from 9 Patterson, Belknap, Webb & Tyler. Your Honor, the Blues plans 10 that are at issue here were served, five out of the six of them 11 were served well over a year ago. They were part of the 12 initial industry sample that defendants touted and were a 13 particularly critical part of that sample because of their 14 status as Blues plans. It's a survey of precisely such plans 15 that have been studied that the plaintiffs in this case rely on 16 for many of the assumptions that underlie their theories of 17 liability and damages.

18 The sixth plan, Mutual of Omaha was subpoenaed this 19 past summer and their discovery focused purely on 20 physician-administer costs. On areas as to which Judge Saris 21 and the court's independent expert noted that the record was 22 unsettled and additional discovery was needed. Despite the 23 fact that these requests have been outstanding for this 24 extensive period of time, these plans between them have yet to 25 produce a single document or a single witness. Their position

1 as stated by Mr. Poulin appears to be that other plans have 2 made productions while they have been standing by recalcitrant 3 and refusing to produce and, therefore, they should somehow be 4 rewarded for that by being exempted from production. They've 5 stuck to that position even as Your Honor has granted motions
6 to compel against other health plans that cover substantially 7 the same discovery sought here. For example, Your Honor, 8 granted a motion to compel against Health Net where the 9 documents sought were actually far broader than those we seek 10 from these plaintiffs. Broader because the discovery had issue 11 that also included self-administered drugs, whereas the focus 12 is now on physician-administered drugs. Similarly, Your Honor 13 has granted motions to compel their position testimony from 14 other health plans, Etna, Cigna, Umeta on the very same 15 deposition copies as to which we seek testimony from these 16 plans. The plans are aware of these rulings but nonetheless 17 have refused to comply in any form which these subpoenas most 18 of which have been outstanding for over a year.

19 Now, the only excuses for this tardiness that we've 20 heard today are that, well other health plans have responded 21 and they're a sufficiently large sample. Well, they're not, 22 Your Honor, and the evidence for that is twofold. First, the 23 discovery we seek is on physician-administered drugs. In its 24 cost certification opinion the Court expressly noted that there 25 were areas pertaining to that record that required

1 supplementation. My learned friend also points to a chart 2 that they include in their motions and claim that well, our 3 sample to date has included a sufficient number of lives. Well
4 that's simply not true. This chart does represent the entities
5 that were subpoenaed and the number of lives it covered. It
6 does not reflect the extent of their responses. For example, 7 United Health Group is one of the largest players on this list 8 from my learned friend that the 20 million lives, they're 9 subject to a motion to compel. So it's Empire, Blue Cross Blue 10 Shield with about 5 million lives.

11 In short, Your Honor, if we had a sufficient industry 12 sample we wouldn't be here today, but the fact is that these 13 plans were a core part of the initial industry sample and they 14 have yet to respond to this subpoena.

15 Now the only other arguments that I heard from Mr.
16 Poulin refers that these plans are absent class members so 17 should be shielded from discovery. That issue, Your Honor, has 18 already been determined by Judge Saris. In December of 2003
19 the MDL class plaintiffs filed a motion for a protective order 20 seeking to bar discovery from third party health plans on 21 exactly that basis, that they're absent class members. The 22 Court had the benefit of extensive briefing from all sides 23 including a reply brief by the plaintiffs, heard testimony and 24 then allowed that discovery to proceed. Judge Saris placed no 25 limitations on that discovery in her written order, which is

1 part of our papers, nor did she at the hearing. Mr. Poulin 2 pointed to--

3 THE COURT: Let me just interrupt for a minute. When 4 were the first absent class members noticed?

5 MR. MANGI: Your Honor, I believe the initial 6 subpoenas to third parties were served in the fall of 2003.
7 They led to the motion practice in December of 2003.

8 THE COURT: And these were served?

9 MR. MANGI: These subpoenas were served, Your Honor, 10 in 2004 for the most part. The initial subpoenas that lead to 11 the motion practice were a very small sample. We were just 12 getting the process going but when defendants filed that motion 13 everything ground to a halt. No third party health plan would 14 respond until the motion was adjudicated. So it wasn't until 15 that motion was actually decided that the sample of discovery 16 began in earnest.

17 Now Mr. Poulin also pointed to some excerpts from the 18 transcript when Judge Saris dealt with this issue. For the 19 proposition that she imposed some form of limitation on the 20 discovery. I respectfully disagree with my learned friend, the 21 record there is very clear. The sections that Mr. Poulin 22 referred Your Honor to were where Judge Saris was dealing with 23 issues pertaining to ERISA Plans and discovery of the 24 plaintiffs. And it's clear from the relying from Mr. Berman
25 that Mr. Poulin did not read out. In fact, where Judge Saris

1 did deal with this issue she stated, I think the plans
2 themselves are able to protect themselves. There's nothing I
3 can imagine that would be a problem with that. When Mr. Wise
4 pointed out, we're not looking to be burdensome, we just want a 5 sample, the Court stated, I think that's appropriate because I
6 remember looking at the case law. And Judge Saris' written 7 order followed up and similarly allowed this discovery to 8 proceed without placing any such limitations upon it.

9 THE COURT: Are there any other discovery requests to 10 absent class members that have not been responded to that are 11 outstanding at this time?

12 MR. MANGI: Your Honor, there are two motions to 13 compel that are currently pending before Your Honor, fully 14 briefed, one pertaining to United, another pertaining to Empire
15 Blue Cross Blue Shield. There are also some discovery requests 16 that have been served by Track Two defendants that are 17 Massachusetts specific, falling all on the Court's class 18 certification ruling and those are still being discussed, 19 negotiated between the parties.

20 Now finally, the only other argument that Mr. Poulin 21 made is in reference to the August 31st close of Track One 22 discovery. That argument has no merit or application here.
23 First of all, these subpoenas were served on behalf of all 24 defendants, including the Track Two defendants. Moreover, they 25 were served for the most part over a year ago. Responses are

1 always due prior to the close of discovery. In fact on August 2 8th we sent counsel for the plaintiffs a draft motion to compel 3 as part of the meet and confer process making clear we intended
4 to move to compel these productions. The plans then changed 5 tact and agreed to make productions. So we have often prior to 6 that. It's not until September 22 the reliance on the policy
7 certification are there, the plans then change tact again, 8 again refuse to produce--

9 THE COURT: So there was an agreement at one point to 10 produce everything?

11 MR. POULIN: No, Your Honor, my view that we did not 12 have an agreement. My representation to counsel was that I 13 would go back to the clients and discuss this particularly in 14 light of what had transpired since the subpoenas had been 15 served including class certification briefing and also we were 16 discussing the fact that between November of 2004 which was 17 shortly after the subpoenas were served for six months we 18 didn't hear from the defendants. During that time we presumed 19 class certification issues--

20 THE COURT: Well that doesn't exactly relieve you of 21 this.

22 MR. POULIN: No, it doesn't, Your Honor. But, again, 23 the last time we heard from the defendants prior to that six 24 months was in November of 2004, and, again, I haven't heard, 25 you know, the defendants say, you know, why they need this

1 additional information. I will point out that in the papers
2 filed initially before Judge Saris on subpoenas defendants had 3 initially issued I believe it was 29 subpoenas. So it wasn't a 4 few, and certainly there was some motion practice related to 5 the discovery of absent class members initially. But that's in 6 2004, Your Honor. Much has transpired since then. I think the 7 law is pretty clear that you just can't take a discovery 8 campaign against all class members.

9 THE COURT: No, I know the law.

10 MR. POULIN: Right.

11 THE COURT: But is there any possibility we can 12 narrow this at all? Are you willing to compromise at all?

13 MR. MANGI: Your Honor, the defendants have already 14 substantially narrowed the discovery that's sought in the 15 subpoena. There's a letter in the record dated I believe June 16 1st where we convey to the plans a very narrow and focused 17 amount of discovery that we sought. Indeed, we eliminated
18 almost all of the requests that pertained to self-administered 19 drugs, focusing on physician-administered drugs on discreet
20 categories that are the core of this case. Plaintiffs'
21 allegations--

22 THE COURT: Well, what I'm asking you is can you 23 narrow it further?

24 MR. MANGI: Your Honor, the narrowing that we've made 25 in that letter is so substantial that we're not able to narrow

1 it any further.

2 THE COURT: All right.

3 MR. MANGI: And indeed that discovery has already 4 been ordered by Your Honor in reference to other plans.

5 MR. POULIN: Your Honor, I would disagree that it's 6 been severely limited. They want all the medical claims data 7 for years and years. They want documents going back for at 8 least the entire class period probably before then. And I'll 9 also note that in that June 1st letter--

10 THE COURT: Do you want materials from before the 11 class period?

12 MR. MANGI: That's not correct. Your Honor, we've 13 clearly defined the period for which we are seeking documents 14 and it's all within the class period.

15 MR. POULIN: Your Honor, I would also point out that 16 in that June 1 letter which was the--

17 THE COURT: So let's be careful. Let's be very 18 precise with our language.

19 MR. POULIN: Yes, I would agree, Your Honor. I am
20 being precise when I state that in that narrowed list it 21 included non-physician-administered drugs. It sought 22 information on all drugs including self-administered drugs.
23 For instance, they request, number five, wanted information on 24 all rebates. Request number eight wanted information on all 25 MAC lists, those are the lists of generic drugs upon which

1 third party payers base their generic reimbursement. And that 2 has nothing to do with injectable drugs. So those are just two 3 examples of how extremely broad their requests currently are to 4 our clients who are not in this case.

5 THE COURT: Two minutes, that's it.

6 MR. MANGI: Thank you, Your Honor. Briefly on the 7 topic of the discovery that we're seeking, claims data that 8 Mr. Poulin objects to this is a simple process of an electronic 9 download. Numerous other health plans have done it to date and 10 indeed the defendants have paid the costs of doing that 11 electronic download. So there's simply no burden issue.

12 THE COURT: And you're willing to pay the costs here?

13 MR. MANGI: Your Honor, we made that offer over a 14 year ago. As to the other areas as to which we seek documents 15 we're not seeking all the documents about these drugs, we're 16 very specific. For example, all documents reflecting your 17 client's understanding of whether healthcare providers are in 18 the margin. And the other requests are similarly limited. As 19 to the areas where there may be some overlap with 20 self-administered drugs, it's necessary, but it's limited.

21 THE COURT: All right. I've heard enough.
22 Protective order denied. Pay the costs for the download.

23 MR. POULIN: Thank you, Your Honor.

24 THE COURT: All right. All right, moving on to 25 docket entry number 1738, which is the motion by Johnson &

1 Johnson, Centocor, Wagner, et cetera.

2 MR. MANGI: Thank you, Your Honor. This motion,
3 1738, is a motion by Centocor, which is a subsidiary of Johnson
4 & Johnson and the group of six former employees to quash 5 subpoenas served on those former employees on the grounds that 6 they're untimely. Now, the subpoenas that are at issue here 7 seek both documents and testimony and were served on the 8 individuals on various dates between September 7 and September 9 17, 2005 and sought depositions from September 20th through 10 September 26th. Both the service dates of the subpoenas and the 11 date in which they called for responses were well outside of 12 the August 31st close of Track One discovery specified in case 13 management order 13.

14 Now the local rules of this Court and Rule 16.1(f) as 15 well as case law from around the country that we cite in our 16 papers even treatises at Wright and Miller, are all clear and 17 straightforward as to what the close of fact discovery means.
18 It meant that by August 31st the plaintiffs here had to complete 19 all of the depositions that they were seeking to take.

20 In this case, Judge Saris also ordered case 21 management order 10, which specified a 21-day notice period for 22 depositions. Accordingly, plaintiffs' obligation here was very 23 clear, straightforward and there are notice of it since at 24 least March of this year when CMO-13 was ordered. Before 25 August 10 plaintiffs had to identify the witnesses who they

1 wanted to depose, do any due investigation to ascertain 2 whether they were current employees, former employees, and then 3 timely notice their depositions or subpoena them so that the 4 depositions could be completed before the close of discovery on 5 August 31st. The plaintiffs here failed to adhere to those 6 deadlines and there's simply no excuse for their failure to do 7 so.

8 As of November 2004, some 10 months before the close 9 of discovery, Centocor had already produced over 95% of the 10 documents that they've produced in this case. Those included 11 it appears all of the documents that the plaintiffs are 12 interested in exploring with these six individual reps.
13 Throughout the spring and the summer other plaintiffs counsel 14 dealing with other defendants, identified the witnesses they 15 wanted, subpoenaed those who were former employees, took their 16 depositions. Indeed, they did so with other Johnson & Johnson 17 Companies and we had no objection. But counsel dealing with 18 Centocor did nothing, and they waited until after the deadline 19 had expired.

20 Now this motion was a natural consequence and the 21 plaintiffs' response in their papers has been twofold. First, 22 they tell the Court, and this was raised for the first time in 23 their opposition papers, that these are not discovery
24 depositions at all. They state that these are trial 25 depositions being taken for the purpose of preservation of 1 evidence and, therefore, they should not be constrained by the 2 CMO-13 close of fact discovery. Now that argument, Your Honor, 3 is simply a non-stopper for two reasons. First, we submit that 4 the better view as expounded in cases before Your Honor in our 5 papers such as Integra and Bompreau, is that there is no such 6 distinction in the federal rules and all depositions should be 7 completed bar exceptional circumstances by the close of 8 discovery. That logic is especially compelling in an MDL

9 proceeding such as this where the plaintiffs could otherwise 10 continue taking depositions for as long as they choose to do 11 so. But second and more importantly it's very clear on the 12 record that these are discovery depositions and not trial 13 depositions at all. Indeed in the run up to the filing of this 14 motion--

15 THE COURT: Well, what do you base that on?

16 MR. MANGI: I base it, Your Honor, both on facts and 17 on the case law the plaintiffs cite which is as follows; first 18 as to the facts, in the run up to filing this motion we had to 19 meet and confer with plaintiffs' counsel, Mr. Macoretta. He 20 told us that he wanted to take these depositions of these six 21 individuals to explore the perspective of Centocor's sales 22 level employees, to explore documents with those employees.
23 Indeed he stated he may even be satisfied after taking two 24 depositions let alone all six. These depositions are no
25 different from all the other sales level discovery depositions

1 plaintiffs have been pursuing against all Track One 2 defendants. And indeed this is evidence by the very cases that 3 the plaintiffs cite for the proposition that they should be 4 permitted trial depositions. For example, the plaintiffs rely 5 on--

6 THE COURT: Well, can you agree and maybe take two 7 and then see what happens?

8 MR. MACORETTA: I believe I made the offer. Your 9 Honor, I suggested that we would start with two. The purpose 10 is to get these people for trial. I'm not interested in 11 exploring anything. If two of them give what we believe is 12 useful testimony I suggested that we would stop at two. We 13 don't need to present eight witnesses at trial. But if the 14 first two have selective memory, which has been the problem 15 with some other witnesses and are useless at trial then we may 16 need to go to the next step.

17 THE COURT: Oh.

18 MR. MACORETTA: So I could agree to that.

19 THE COURT: Where are they?

20 MR. MACORETTA: They're all over the country, Your 21 Honor. Our papers are incorrect. Mr. Babone is in New 22 Hampshire, so he's probably available for trial. We have a 23 couple in California, one in Missouri, one in Virginia, one by 24 New York City. That's all six.

25 THE COURT: All right. I didn't mean to interrupt

1 you.

2 MR. MACORETTA: I'm sorry.

3 MR. MANGI: Thank you, Your Honor. Well, on that 4 specific point, Your Honor, I should point out that the 5 plaintiffs have already deposed two sales level employees who 6 they did notice in time. So what they're seeking here is 7 duplicative testimony to further evidence positions that we've 8 never disputed. Returning to the specific point on trial
9 depositions, the cases that plaintiffs cite where trial
10 depositions were allowed, RLS Associates, The Esten Felder
11 case, all pertain to situations where a party was seeking to 12 depose their own employee where they knew exactly what they 13 were going to say and had to leave the company unexpectedly.
14 Indeed in the Esten Felder case the court stated what the test
15 was very explicitly. If a parties seeking to depose its own 16 witness that may well be a trial deposition depending on the 17 facts, but where they're seeking to depose an opposing parties 18 witness, as is the case here, the court stated it's likely a 19 discovery deposition and I quote, "attempting to pose as a 20 trial deposition", and that's precisely what we have here.

21 The only other argument that the plaintiffs have made 22 to excuse their tardiness in this case is to the point and the 23 fact that they intimated that they wanted to depose these six 24 individuals on August 10 and that they did so by raising their 25 names for the very first time through a deposition notice.

1 Well, Your Honor, the case law that we cited in our briefs and 2 which I referred to earlier is very clear as to what 3 plaintiffs' obligation is. By August 10 they had to subpoena 4 the individuals, conduct all of their investigations prior to 5 that date and complete the depositions by the close of 6 discovery. They simply failed to adhere to that requirement 7 here. There's no excuse. They had the names. They had the 8 documents up to 10 months in advance, therefore, we 9 respectfully ask the subpoenas be quashed, the protective order 10 entered.

11 THE COURT: I'll hear you.

12 MR. MACORETTA: Your Honor, what didn't have until 13 August 26th was the fact that these people were former 14 representatives and where they lived. Let me give you a little 15 bit of the details of this.

16 The purpose of taking this testimony is to present at 17 trial how that we allege the scheme was enacted. We allege 18 there was a scheme to go market the spread to physicians. We 19 have corporate documents, business plans creating that. These 20 witnesses are the sales representatives who actually went to 21 the doctor and said, look doctor this is how much you make on 22 the spread. We noticed eight people for that on the belief 23 that we would not need all of them. Two of them so worked at 24 Centocor. We have testimony from them. One, Laura Glasgow, 25 sat up and explained this is what I said to a room full of

1 doctors, this is how much he can make. The other one, Cheryl
2 Cohen, essentially couldn't remember anything. So we're left 3 with one useful witness at trial. The other six people we 4 noticed no longer worked at Centocor. Noticed them August 10th.
5 We learned for the first time they didn't work at Centocor on 6 August 21st. We didn't learn their addresses until August 26th.
7 That was a Friday. On Monday or Tuesday we issued subpoenas to 8 the addresses we had. That is the timing of this.

9 They are not discovery depositions in the sense that 10 we're not interested in learning more discovery or finding more 11 documents or learning other people to go depose from this, but 12 we videotaped we want to put them on at trial to explain to the 13 jury how the scheme was effectuated. That is the purpose of 14 this. The timing is - the dates at least as Mr. Mangi 15 explained it is exactly what they said. The subpoenas were 16 issued August 30th. There's no question they weren't served 17 until after August 31st and obviously they require testimony
18 after August 31st. That's because we didn't have, we didn't know 19 these people weren't at Centocor anymore and we didn't have 20 addresses until that date.

21 I told you I would need their trial testimony. That 22 should respond to the discovery versus trial deposition issue.
23 Seriously, Your Honor, this is a variation on the same issue
24 that came up in the last motion where counsel for Blue Cross 25 said, well, you know, we didn't have an agreement.

1 Mr. Mangi said we did have an agreement. The deadline passed
2 and they didn't do anything. So there they had - they didn't 3 want to be barred by the deadline. Here they're seeking to bar 4 us from the deadline.

5 THE COURT: Okay, I'll let you have two of them. You 6 pick the two that you think might be the most fruitful.

7 MR. MACORETTA: All right.

8 THE COURT: If you come back after you've taken two 9 and you have two that have no memory, I'll consider whether I 10 let you do something else.

11 MR. MACORETTA: All right. Thank you, Your Honor.

12 THE COURT: But do it on a short timeframe.

13 MR. MACORETTA: We will. Thank you, Your Honor.

14 THE COURT: You're welcome.

15 MR. MONTGOMERY: Your Honor--

16 THE COURT: All right.

17 MR. MONTGOMERY: Your Honor, with your permission I'd 18 like to raise briefly one issue on behalf of the Track One 19 defendants. This relates to docket number 1694 which we 20 understand is going to be decided by Judge Saris, but the 21 absence of a determination or at least a presentation on that 22 issue today leaves us in a technical bind. Docket number 1694
23 involves the expert disclosure schedule. Under the current 24 case management order, the plaintiffs were required to file
25 their expert report on October 1st. The defendants are required

1 to file on November 15th. While the plaintiffs simply blew by 2 October 1st, we are immensely uncomfortable about doing that 3 without judicial relief. The order of course contemplates that 4 our reports are going to be responsive to the plaintiffs' 5 reports. That obviously we can't do since they're not going to 6 file their reports.

7 THE COURT: When are you going to file your reports?

8 MR. MACORETTA: Mr. Matt, will address this.

9 Mr. MATT: First of all we don't know when we're 10 going to file the expert report because it is the subject of a 11 motion to extend the expert deadline which you understand we 12 are not hearing today so I cannot give you a date. And let's 13 respond to a statement that plaintiffs just blew by the 14 deadline. That is simply not true. We filed our motion for 15 extension on August 31st. I will state for the record that 16 plaintiffs don't object to have a forbearance of the 17 defendants' experts' report that are due until there is a 18 resolution over which.

19 THE COURT: I would say--

20 MR. MATT: I think that's logical.

21 THE COURT: And I would endorse that and I would say 22 regardless of when it's filed, yours will be due 45 days later
23 which is what it was. I'm not going to alter--

24 MR. MATT: Which is what it was.

25 THE COURT: Yeah.

1 MR. MATT: We do have some issues as to whether we 2 now are entitled to more time, but we understand we can address
3 those to Judge Saris and we do appreciate--

4 THE COURT: All right. I don't want to go too much 5 beyond that but I think that's fair and reasonable, and I think 6 if you tell her that I endorsed that she will be in agreement.

7 MR. MATT: We appreciate that, your Honor.

8 THE COURT: All right.

9 MR. MATT: Thank you very much.

10 THE COURT: All right. I will schedule for few 11 future hearings nonparty Empire Blue Cross' motion to quash, 12 docket entry number 1682, motion to compel third party United 13 Health Care to produce documents and witnesses for deposition, 14 docket entry 1770, and a motion to compel production of IMS
15 data, docket number 1794, motion to compel production by Amgen, 16 docket entry number 1820, and a motion to compel production by 17 Baxter 1862. There maybe a few others.

18 What I would ask is that - the former deputy clerk 19 was kind of managing these motions as they came in, and 20 although I look at the docket everyday and note that X has come 21 in and then wait 14 days for a response, some things I think 22 have slipped through the cracks, so I would ask you if you have 23 things that you want scheduled, tell me now or tell me in a 24 letter forthwith.

25 MR. MACORETTA: Your Honor, one for the plaintiffs

1 now there's an Aventis motion for a protective order arguing 2 that the 10 deposition limit of the local rules stops us from 3 taking anymore Aventis depositions. I believe that's fully 4 briefed. I don't have the docket number.

5 THE COURT: Is that the one I agreed to take on the 6 papers? No. Okay. Oh, okay, that's--

7 MR. MACORETTA: There's actually a motion within 8 that.

9 THE COURT: --1792?

10 (Pause)

11 THE COURT: Yeah, it would look like 1792, 1804 and 12 1839, the cross motion for a protective order all related.

13 MR. DEMARCO: Yes, Your Honor.

14 MR. MACORETTA: I believe that's 04.

15 MR. DEMARCO: For the record, Michael DeMarco for 16 Aventis. I don't believe that is fully briefed as yet. I 17 think that brief is due next week.

18 MR. MACORETTA: Oh, your response to our cross motion 19 is due next week. Okay.

20 THE COURT: Okay.

21 MR. MACORETTA: That is correct, yes.

22 THE COURT: So set those up for a hearing.

23 MR. MACORETTA: Okay. Do we need to then schedule
24 that after it's fully briefed, Your Honor? Is that the best 25 way to proceed with this?

1 THE COURT: Oh, I think I can figure this out.

2 MR. MACORETTA: I just wanted to help you. Okay.

3 UNIDENTIFIED: Your Honor, may I--

4 MR. MATT: So we'll wait for your scheduling order on 5 that without--

6 THE COURT: Yes, yeah. I'll try and get all of this 7 done before the holidays.

8 MR. MACORETTA: Thank you.

9 The COURT: It's been tough because I've been doing a 10 lot of the docketing myself and Ms. Filo has been very, very 11 helpful but.

12 MR. MACORETTA: Your Honor, we'll endeavor, the 13 plaintiffs will endeavor to send you a letter Monday on 14 anything else we think maybe out there.

15 THE COURT: All right. And the same for everybody
16 else in the room, if there are things you want to have heard I 17 have two jury trials between now and Christmas, but I can see 18 you in the afternoon.

19 MR. MACORETTA: Your Honor, may I suggest that with 20 respect to the split between what Your Honor is going to 21 address and what Judge Saris is going to address that there is 22 a very close relationship between the 1694, 1769 and 1794.
23 1794 is a motion to compel INS data. On the other hand one of 24 the bases for the motion for an extension relates to INS data.

25 THE COURT: That, yeah.

1 MR. MACORETTA: So I think those you might wish to 2 consider and we'd be glad to submit a letter explaining our 3 reasoning for hearing those together.

4 THE COURT: That would be helpful. And I can discuss 5 it with Judge Saris. It may be that she does want me to deal 6 with it.

7 MR. MACORETTA: Okay.

8 THE COURT: But I don't want to overstep.

9 MR. MACORETTA: Thank you, Your Honor. We'll do that 10 tomorrow.

11 THE COURT: All right.

12 MR. MACORETTA: Thank you.

13 THE COURT: All right, hearing nothing else but my 14 new clerk will be starting a week from Monday. His name is 15 Marc, M-A-R-C, Duffy, D-U-F-F-Y. He will be at the same 16 contact numbers that Mr. Saccoccio had. So you do - my 17 secretary has tried valiantly to deal with some of these 18 inquiries, but I can tell you she is a very frustrated lady by 19 the end of the week, and so we've done our best to kind of keep 20 track of it. We've been in trial, which is also made it 21 harder.

22 All right, hearing nothing else we stand in recess.

23 MR. MACORETTA: Thank you, Your Honor.

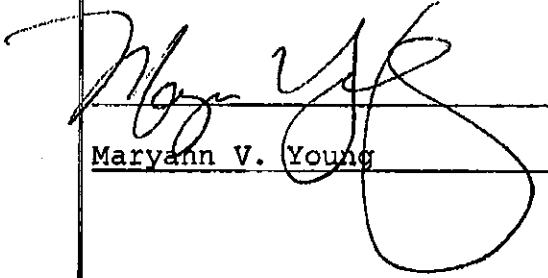

24 THE COURT: All right.
